OUR GREATEST RESOURCE

SARAH DAVIS

VOTED TO STOP RUNAWAY TESTING

THE THREE C'S AND THE THREE R'S

Texas was built on THE THREE "C'S" – cattle, cotton and crude. But there's a fourth "C" with vastly more resource potential: our children. Developing their potential starts with education, and their ability to master THE THREE "R'S": reading, writing and arithmetic.

GIVE CHILDREN A CHANCE

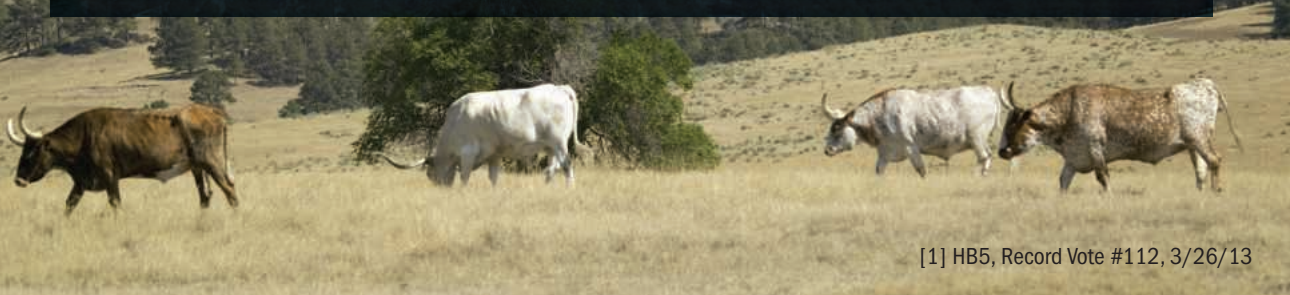

Education can open the door to a lifetime of opportunity for children of every background. Every young Texan should enjoy the same opportunity to learn and to work toward their dreams, empowered with a good education which will prepare them for the future economy.

Our children won't be prepared for the rigorous challenges of life ahead if our schools reduce education to rote memorization in order to pass standardized tests. Rep. Sarah Davis has listened to Texas parents, and she's said enough is enough! We need more learning and fewer standardized tests!

Rep. Sarah Davis voted for legislation that reformed testing procedures, reducing the number of high-stakes tests in Texas schools from 15 to 5^[1]. The bill would have further reduced testing in grades 3-8, had the bureaucrats in Washington granted Texas a waiver from federal mandates.

"Education should teach children to think critically, rather than to simply memorize answers to standardized tests. For too long we've focused on the results of standardized testing, instead of preparing young Texans for the tests of life."
