

The Trials & Tribulations of John Gordon - Part I

“DEFENDANT JOHN GORDON THREATENED TO BEAT PLAINTIFF TO PIECES AND TO RUIN HIS POLITICAL CAREER...”

When Leo Wood walked into the Williamson County Republican Party office to file for state representative in 1994, he had no idea that the simple act of placing his name on the ballot would make one man so angry: John Gordon.

John Gordon has used threats, intimidation and frivolous lawsuits to advance his political career.

BUT IT'S NOT GOING TO WORK ANYMORE

Williamson County, have we had enough of John Gordon yet?"

Vote NO to the politics of fear and intimidation.
Vote NO to John Gordon on April 13th.

ACCORDING TO COURT RECORDS:

Defendant Gordon immediately verbally attacked Plaintiff in an almost violent confrontation threatening to destroy Plaintiff and Plaintiff’s wife, Vivian Wood, if Plaintiff filed in the Republican General Primary of March 8, 1994, for State Representative District 52. More particularly, Defendant John Gordon threatened to beat Plaintiff to pieces and to ruin his political career and political career of his wife...”

(Case No. 94-007-C26)

Gordon tried to intimidate a man from running for the very office he now seeks!

GORDON’S FAVORITE TACTIC: USE THE COURTHOUSE TO ADVANCE HIS POLITICAL AGENDA

Who knew a Republican candidate who calls himself conservative could be so sue-happy? John Gordon has sued our local school district, sued one of his opponents, sued the Williamson County Republican Party, and even sued a candidate.

#1 Gordon Sues Round Rock Independent School District (Case No. 07-035-C277, 1/18/07) – Despite jammed classrooms and tight budgets due to population growth in southern Williamson County, John Gordon sued the RRISD, costing taxpayers precious financial resources and time – two things better spent on our children. The case was soon dismissed, to the relief of parents throughout the district concerned with providing the best education environment possible for their children.

#2 John Gordon sued his friend and senate candidate Randall Staudt. The case was dismissed, but John kept fighting in court. This is how John repays his friends treat friends? (Case No. 01-0002-CC1, 4/5/02)

#3 16 years after trying to intimidate a candidate off the ballot, Gordon used the courthouse to advance his political ambitions, suing the Williamson County Republican Party and Republican candidate Alyssa Eacono to kick her off the 2010 Republican Primary ballot. John lost. John appealed and requested a trial by jury. After John's opponent paid thousands in legal fees and WON, and after John filed an appeal, John DROPPED the charge. What an abuse.

PRIVATE EYES ARE WATCHING YOU...

Gordon even hired a private detective to track an opponent's movements.

Threats, intimidation, frivolous lawsuits that would harm schoolchildren: are those the qualities you want in your next state representative?
